Serving the World Through Missions, Outreach & Evangelism
Managing What Belongs to God

God created and owns everything! We are stewards for God. Just as God created each animal of the wild unique, with great purpose, He also created man and woman in His own image. God has a unique plan for each of our lives, and that includes entrusting to us the task of being good stewards. This past week we have been On Safari, as we journeyed with our guide, Bomani, through the land of Zohannnda. On Safari, we met some of Bomani's friends who helped us discover the real joy of stewardship by taking care of all the things that God has entrusted to us. Together, in our commitment to being stewards for God, we not only glorify God but also make this world a better place in which to live. In preaching the life, death, and resurrection of Jesus in our evangelism, we are helping to make visible the invisible reality of Christ.

Matthew 28:18-20 is the Great Commission in which Jesus announced to His disciples that He had all power and authority. This authority was given to Jesus by God. On the basis of that authority, the disciples were (and believers today are) challenged to go and proclaim the Gospel message to the world. Go, in Greek, is in the active voice and means that while we are on our way, along our journey, we have been entrusted to share the Gospel.

Instead of focusing on internally (inside the church), Jesus wants His people to also direct their attention outward to reach all nations. As people hear the Gospel, it has the power to move the hearts of men and women to faith in Jesus, thus producing disciples. It is through this stewardship that God will bring people to Himself. Stewarding the Gospel will bring joy, meaning, and purpose to our lives as we share this glorious Gospel with others.
